Original instrumental music drawing from influences of classical, jazz, world, and pop using Native American flute, Bansuri flute from India, bamboo flute, ocarina, and recorder. 12 MP3 Songs NEW AGE: New Age, WORLD: World Fusion Details: Cornell Kinderknecht is a performer of flutes and other woodwind instruments from around the world. His original compositions and playing have been described as soothing, soaring, haunting, and playful with influences of Native America, the Middle East, India, and the Far East. His musical style draws from his experience in the areas of classical, pop, folk, jazz and world music. On his CD Returing Home, Cornell plays flutes from many cultures. He presents Native American flute, Bansuri flute from India, bamboo flute, recorder, and ocarina in beautiful and breathtaking musical settings. The flute is sometimes used as lone solo voice or accompanied by keyboard and percussion. The music ranges from introspective to exotic to all out fun. "The flute play is absolutely wonderful, and the variety of musical sounds on this work is rather amazing, with influences of Native America, the orient, and even classical baroque music as part of the mix. Yet, even with all of the variety in musical sound, the pieces flow well from one to another, with both gentle meditative tracks, and lively, upbeat, tracks in the mix. ... I find the music refreshingly different, engaging, and the style of play simply mesmerizing. I am so impressed, I have already suggested we need more!" --- Rick McDaniel, Heart of the Cedar, CD Review of the Week Find out more about Cornell Kinderknecht, view photos, and see the upcoming performance schedule at cornellk.com
