CDbaby editor's choice. Ambient experimental electronic music sound and noise. Beautiful, surreal, brutal. 11 MP3 Songs ELECTRONIC: Experimental, ELECTRONIC: Ambient Details: CDbaby's reviewer says: "Sick of all normal music? Can you appreciate music that doesn't have "notes"? The wonderfully sparse electronic noise will cleanse your palette. Primal, idiosyncratic, texture driven sound. Scary, delightful, ambiguous, clear, organic, metallic, glassy, wet, or prickly. I love how un-catchy this music is, so I can listen to it over and over again all day as I work, and never get sick of it." *****

m/n/m/l = hardcore minimalism, surreal experimental electronics. This is classic, primal, idiosyncratic, texture driven sound. The only instrument used is a Serge modular synthesizer, played expertly by me, John Papiewski, founder of the Serge fan's web site (serge-fans.com). perpendicular twist is the first CD I released. Over a year went into its creation. tracks include 'alley', a raw exploration of clicks and noise. 'Sunshine' is a melodic serene daydream played in an unknown scale. 'Hips' growls and seduces with a voluptuous beat. 'Breath' wakes from a nightmare. Who am I? A self-taught electronic music composer, a guy with a desire to do music in this particular style. See, I enjoy many different kinds of music but especially turned on by this experimental/abstract stuff, and there frankly just isn't enough out there, so I have to make more. Spent a lot of my youth doing home recordings with tape recorders and homebrew electronics. In the mid-90's set myself up with a Serge Modular system and digital recording with the intention of creating freeform music. These are the results. thanks for visiting!  note: 10 of my sales go to humanitarian causes **
