Quirky Modern Pop with Disco/New Wave/Punk Rock n'Roll influences. 1978 meets 2005. Like a female fronted Killers. 11 MP3 Songs POP: 80's Pop, POP: New Wave Details: STIMULATOR ON TOUR WITH DURAN DURAN IN JULY! "Seriously sassy n'catchy pop, Stimulator led by sultry singer Susan Hyatt (Pillbox) guitarist-producer Geoff Tyson (Snake River Conspiracy) play radio-friendly Blondie meets Garbage style grinds to seduce with robust hooks big choruses all buffed to a slinky sparkly sheen"- - LA Weekly The year was 1978 - The hands of America were glued to an Atari joystick, Olivia Newton-John became every boy's fantasy in Grease, and rock n' roll got kissed by seductive synth beats. For music, it was an era of contradiction in the best possible way. New wave, punk and disco may have had their own fervent -and very separate- followings, but they had more in common than each cared to admit. "People weren't afraid to have bad haircuts, or wear day glow or sing about ants invading," says singer/songwriter Susan Hyatt - the steamy yet strong female presence of Stimulator. Stimulator's quirky retro feel (which helped them score high profile gigs with the likes of Berlin Missing Persons) is just one layer here. Make no mistake, this is a thoroughly modern musical unit with an impressive array of credentials and an understanding of technology's ever-evolving role in music. Susan Hyatt, not only had a Top 20 single in the UK with her grungy-rock group Pillbox, she was also a well-known VJ on Londons' MP3TV. More recently, she served as a consultant to Gina Gershon for the girl rock flick "Prey For Rock n' Roll." Geoff Tyson, the songwriter/producer of Stimulator, best known as the former ax-man for gloomy grinders Snake River Conspiracy, but before that his riff skills were honed and refined by the best: he's worked in the studio with the likes of Mike Shipley and Eric Valentine and he's a former protge of none other than guitar god Joe Satriani. When these two get together it's pure alchemy. Pulsating electro-pop melodies, razor sharp licks and attitude-laden vocals (not to mention Hyatt's often outrageous, DIY stage outfits) make for a, well, stimulating experience. Blow up dolls, S&M (physical and emotional) and a tell-it-like-it-is take on materialism are just a few of the images and themes that pierce through the band's aggressive yet bubbly cuts. It's their infectious sound that's won over the likes of Kerrang (UK) and LA Weekly (US), the CMJ Festival and its what will ultimately garner fans of all tastes and age ranges- even the kiddies. Stimulator did a wonderfully wicked cover of "Magic" in the Disney film "Ella Enchanted" made famous by none-the-other than the aforementioned 70s/80s goddess herself Ms. Olivia. Promoter Kevin Lyman personally invited them on the West Coast leg of the WARPED Tour. stimulatorband.com TOUR DATES WITH DURAN DURAN IN JULY Wednesday July 13th - New Orleans, LA - UNO Lakefront Arena - On-sale 6/11.
