GOSPEL: Contemporary Gospel, POP: Today's Top 40 Details: This album is for someone who is searching for answers to some of life's hardest questions. It's for the person who is interested in looking deep inside themselves with honesty and recognizing who they really are, what their weaknesses are, but also their strengths. Even though Brian deals with his ugliness, there is always hope...there is always that faint light in the distance keeping him going. If you like Michael W. Smith, John Tesh, or Keith Green...you will most likely love this CD! If you like honest, soul searching lyrics...you will like this CD! If you like vocals that are both smooth and edgy...you will like this CD! The album features the sultry sax playing of lifelong musician Christopher Duncan of New Renaissance Productions Studio. It also features the incredibly talented Jesse Thompson on Electric and Acoustic guitar. Brian did all of the drum work on the project and most of the keyboard work, as well. This project was originally intended to be acoustic guitar driven, but it turned into a more piano driven, orchestral sounding project overall. There are some great guitar stuff in there, though, for those who need it. The strength of the project lies within the vocal stylings of Brian himself. His emotion is very much felt on such songs as All I Bring, The One, Nothing To Fear, and The Dreamer. If you are looking for something different and real...this is the album for you.
