the young tenor voices of these two music conservatory graduates take classical music to whole new level, unveiling a new genre with every track. 13 MP3 Songs EASY LISTENING: Crooners/Vocals, CLASSICAL: Contemporary Details: The 2005 year marked a new beginning for Recording Artists, Cristian Mogosan and Samuel Druhora releasing their first album together Panis Angelicus. Music in the 21st century is continuously braking down boundaries, and Panis Angelicus has done just that, creating a whole new genre of pure classical orchestration with a mild twist of pop-rock, and "opera cross-over". This compilation of great Religious and Traditional classics as well as original pieces written and produced by the two artists themselves will leave you with something new in every track of this album. The title Panis Angelicus comes from original Latin meaning, Bread of Angels. Written by Cezar Frank in the mid 1800s, it is a call to the body of Christ. The album is a Production of Palagia Entertainment (palagya.com) with original arrangements done by Stefan Novac conduction the Dinu Lipanti Philharmonic Orchestra, Satu Mare. Born in Cluj-Napoca, RO Cristian Mogosan is a deep rooted musical guru who has written and recorded several songs with various artists in Romania and the US. Cristian has performed live the classical masterpieces of Mozart, Verdi, Puccini, and just recently had his debut performance of La Boehme at the Romanian National Opera. As former lead tenor for the Gospel groups, Transylvania Gospel and Shalom, Cristian performed live all over the Romania, EU and the UK. Being the oldest child among two, Cristian grew up studying piano and French horn under the guidance of his father, professor and International Opera Star, Dr. George Mogosan. Cristians remarkable vocal talents have earned him 1st place in The Romanian Lied Competition. Cristian has graduated from The George Dima Music Conservatory and is now enrolled in the Masters program and a Stage Directors Bachelors program at the conservatory. Also, Born in Cluj-Napoca, Samuel Druhora is the first cousin of Cristian.

Samuels first encounter with music came after a church choir audition with Dr. Daniel Gadalean in 2003. Samuel began his vocal discovery with the guidance of Dr. Gadalean, auditioning for the Chicago College of Performing Arts, Roosevelt University. Samuels remarkable vocal abilities earned him acceptance for the 2004 -2005 year under Professor Michael Best. In 2005, Samuel transferred to the George Dima Music Conservatory to study alongside Cristian under the guidance of Dr. George Mogosan and Dr. Alexandru Farcas, Director of the Romanian National Opera, Cluj-Napoca. Samuel recorded and toured throughout Romania with various artists performing live songs and arias for the Tsunami Relief Fund. Currently Samuel is working on a debut performance of La Traviata by Giuseppe Verdi and is expected complete his degree at the Conservatory in 2008. Following the 2006 release of Panis Angelicus, Cristian and Samuel have toured to over 20 major cities of the US and European countries of, Austria, Belgium, France, Italy Switzerland, Spain...etc performing live at National Operas and other Organizations.
