Details: Mitch Daigneault was born in February 1972, in Regina, Sask. Growing up in Saskatoon, it was at the age of 5 when Mitch received his first guitar. Playing at an early age, Mitch grew up listening to the older country music being played on the radio and on the family cars 8-track stereo. Mitch continued schooling in Saskatoon. After graduating, Mitch continued his education with 3 years enrolled at the Sask. Indian Federated College in Saskatoon. During that time, Mitch began songwriting, and concentrating more on singing. He began writing and performing his own music. Mitch entered numerous talent shows and placed, which began a new chapter and a career hunt. Mitch got involved in many showcases such as the Voices of the North and the Country North Show that are based out of Prince Albert, Saskatchewan. Being a part of the show brought great exposure and experience performing on a live stage. During this time, Mitch took the next logical step and enrolled in the Recording Workshop in Chillicothe, Ohio, where he received a certificate in recording engineering. In 1997, Mitch began a 7-year gig with the C-weed Band in which he sang and played lead guitar. Since then, the C-weed Band has recorded the CD, Run As One in which Mitch wrote two of the songs and played guitar on each of the CDs tracks. The album received a Juno nomination in 2000 for Best Music of Aboriginal Canada. In April of 2002, Mitch recorded and produced his first solo CD. The title track, Keep On Believing has received generous airplay on Aboriginal radio stations across Canada, such as CFWE from Edmonton, Alberta and Missinippi Broadcasting Corporation from La Ronge, Saskatchewan. Substantial airplay on NCI Radio from Winnipeg, Manitoba that broadcasts to 95 of Manitoba, landed the song on the Aboriginal Top 30 for a substantial number of weeks which resulted in a nomination for single of the year by the radio station based on airplay being in the top three for the year. In November of 2003, Mitch won the award for Best Country Album for the CD Keep On Believing at the 2003 Canadian Aboriginal Music Awards held in Toronto. He was also nominated in the categories of Best Male Artist and Best Songwriter. Mitch continues to be active in the music field, recording, producing, playing, performing and writing and is poised to make the jump onto the mainstream Canadian country music stage. Mitch now resides in Battleford, SK. He just released his long-awaited CD Driving All Night in May 2008. The title track Driving All Night is currently racing up the National Aboriginal Top 30 Countdown which airs across Canada. In November, the follow-up track "She Wants" spent two weeks at number 1 on the same countdown. In November 2008, Mitch brought home two 2008 Canadian Aboriginal Music Awards in the categories of Best Male Artist and Best Songwriter for "Driving All Night" and "Letters".
