The feature introduces nine original songs and a host of new screen talent and elves at Santa Claus Inc.'s North Pole Estate and Command Center. Santa's sons, Nicholas (business-minded) and younger brother, Klaus (the reindeer tender) - plus spunky daughter, Sandy (Special Projects) rise to the task of being the next generation. Sandy flies around in her talking Anti-Gravity sleigh named Blaise. She also falls in love with Zwerkin, the inventor of a Teleportation Device that gets Santa into houses without chimneys. Zwerkin, a single father of Bethany and Silvin had to borrow against the home to pay for his wife's funeral. Sadly, he borrowed from his boss, Menacin Snavely and mortgaged his Tele-Santa hand-held videogame, too. It's supposed to be completed on or before December 25th. Trying to save the day, Silvin and Santa's main helper, elf Jan stow away in the back of a sleigh to deliver the finished game to Snavely's Lair. Bad decision. Stealing the Teleporter, Snavely puts on his black Santa-suit and sings about 'deer kabobs and antler soup.' Bzap! he's gone to confront Santa in his own back yard.
