Details: Hydrophonix was formed at the turn of the millenium by Jay Roth and Neil Roemer. The two vocalists had a strong drive and a clear vision to attack universal consciousness through music. It didn't take long before the two met guitarist / vocalist Mike Kmiecik and drummer Matthew Moore. The four worked on songs together before adding Leo Nobre on bass, Walter Davis on saxophone and Justin Andres on guitar. The band's sound started to develop into something unique. Audiences around L.A., Santa Barbara, and Sacramento have been buzzing about the live show as anticipation for the upcoming album continues to grow. After seeing a show at the Whiskey a Go Go in Hollywood, Grammy award winning producer / engineer Jeff Poe approached the band about making an album. Hydrophonix and Jef Poe went into Greenstone studios at the beginning of 2003 and have come out with a DVD documenting their time together and an album that is sure to rock the industry.
