L. knew he was destined to be a star, and would let no one tell him anything different from what he believed. As a kid growing up in a poor environment, he saw a lot of things that he vowed he would change. From living in poverty to seeing his family struggle, he was determined to make a change and break the generational cycle. By listening to such influences as Michael Jackson, Prince, The Bee Gees, Stevie Wonder, Marvin Gaye, Phil Collins, and others he began to develop a variety of styles and taking what they have brought to the industry and fusing it with himself. Hes created a sound that will last a lifetime! While on the journey, faith brought him together with super producer and Recording Artist Tizone (Lil Bud Tizone). They met through a mutual friend and from that point on it was history. Tizone saw determination and potential in this future star. When we first met, I saw so much drive and determination in him. I knew that I had a diamond that needed to be polished, are the words of Tizone. From that point D. L. worked with Tizone on the Art of Making Records and performing in a studio as well as in front of a live audience. After that he began working with one of the greatest vocal coaches in music, Dr. Lena McLin (R.Kelly, Chaka Khan, and Mark B. Rucker). With vocal development, song writing, studio, and live performances, D. L. started his quest to take on the industry. His mission is to bring Love, relationships, and Life, his debut album to the ears of the listeners with such songs as: Its on Me, Ghetto Cry, and the title track Love, Relationships and Life. From this point on the music industry will never be the same after the arrival of D. L. Johnson. Hes the music industrys remedy to the perpetration of R&B.
