Relax with this natural soundscape of a pristine boreal lake at dawn. 60 minutes of uninterrupted peace is available for download. This natural stereo soundscape production has been recorded on site and features the natural sounds of water, wind and waterfowl. The haunting varied calls of the Common Loon, Red-necked Grebe, Goldeneye, Sandhill Crane, Saw-whet Owl and Eastern Phoebe are but a few of the participants in this natural soundscape. Our sense of hearing is one of the most basic, ancient and powerful of our five senses. The sounds of nature have a powerful relaxing, soothing effect on us all.

John has captured this true sound of wilderness on the shore of a pristine lake in the boreal forest at dawn. John Neville, the Birdsong man, has captured peace. Sit back and listen. A wildlife recording, without any narration , has been requested by many birders over the years. This is John's response. We hope you like it. Feel free to give us your feedback . Contact nevillerecording.com Sound Engineer : Traz
