The content of the song is reflective of a simpler day and age in which "right and wrong" is timeless and touching. "Joshua Today" quotes: "Wow, this is a really well produced children's CD. This music isn't done in the standard 'talking down' manner that a lot of children's music comes in. Instead, it has talented musicianship, professional arrangements, and upstanding morals. ...A warning to parents: If you buy this CD your kids will probably drive you crazy playing it over and over. It's very catchy!"
