CLASSICAL: Traditional Details: Luba Sindler (lubasindler.com) is a pianist of brilliant virtuosity, compelling musicianship and powerful presentation. She was born in St. Petersburg, Russia, where she studied at St. Petersburg Conservatory, graduating with a doctoral degree in piano and chamber music. She later taught at the same institution while maintaining an active performance schedule. Having moved to the United States in 1987 after suffering a nine-year political persecution in the former Soviet Union, she continued her career as a soloist, chamber artist and teacher. Ms. Sindler participated in major music festivals and presented numerous recitals throughout the United States and in many European countries with great success. Dr. Sindler is a co-founder and artistic director of the Blue Mountain Festival dedicated to promoting chamber music among young people by the unique combination of learning and performing experiences (bluemountainfestival.org). Ms. Sindler founded and for seven years coordinated the Musical Heritage Series in Princeton, New Jersey notable for its unique concept and creative programming. She also co-founded and coordinated Sundays of Note Series in San Jose, CA as well as the chamber music program at Westminster Conservatory in Princeton, NJ. Her solo CD, containing works by such diverse composers as Mozart, Chopin, Liszt, and Prokofiev, is a good representation of the scope and brilliance of her style. Her next commercial CD will feature the nineteenth century rarely performed virtuosic piano transcriptions. Luba Sindler received her second doctoral degree in piano performance from Rutgers University in 1995 and served on the faculty of San Jose State and Rutgers Universities. She has presented her pedagogical research findings at major national conventions and continues an active consulting in this field. Dr. Sindler is an internationally recognized lecturer and clinician in the areas of chamber music and piano technique.
