ELECTRONIC: Down Tempo, ROCK: Psychedelic Details: Andrew Biscoe and James Boyle first met in 1991 when they worked together in the arts sharing a passion for listening and writing music. Andrew had a particular flare for writing ambient style rock, James brought a groove from the hip hop genre and they met somewhere in the middle. In 2001 having produced some pieces together for a contemporary dance company and a short film they decided to create an album blending their two styles. The result was ZallaNayvers - Searching for Random, a journey into the murky world of feelings. Reviews of the album suggest an absorbing mix of electronica and rock (wires and wood) in a down tempo style with soulful vocals adding to the rich tapestry of their sound. Having built up a strong following on myspace they decided to release their album in the Summer of 2006.
