Old school soul with touches of modern, urban grooves. 13 MP3 Songs URBAN/R&B: R&B Rap mix, GOSPEL: Contemporary Gospel Details: KING CAT RECORDS PRESENTS; J. J. Bin Judah, The High Shaff of Love and His Underground Posse J. J. Bin Judah, (Herbert E. Brown), is a native of Skippers, Virginia. He is a blind singer, songwriter, and guitarist with more than twenty years experience in the music industry. He has produced and released three Gospel albums: "Special Blend: 1988", "It Took The Holy Ghost To Knock The Devil Out Of Me: 1997", and "I'm Saved To The Bone: 2000". "Love, Come Out With Your Hands Up" scheduled to be released July 1, 2004 is his first R&B and Hip-hop project. "Love, Come Out With Your Hands Up" features a rare blend of R&B and Hip-hop that will certainly connect with the older as well as younger fans of Stone Soul music and red-hot Hip-hop. Mr. Bin Judah has produced the kind of honest, sincere, unabashed, and passionate music that is straight from the heart. It is music that proudly and unapologetically celebrates black love, black pride, black self-respect, and black self-determination. This powerful CD will leave no doubt in the world, that J. J. Bin Judah is the bonafide Deop of Hip-hop and the Satin Sage of Soul. He is also a writer and publisher. "Blood or Justice: 1993" and "Pimps in the Pulpit: 1999", are some of his books in print. Mr. Bin Judah holds three degrees in higher education. He is a graduate of the Virginia State University, the Ohio State University, and he attended the University of the District of Columbia. So in addition to his musical and literary credits, Mr. Bin Judah is also a professional educator, historian, and motivational speaker. He can be contacted via email at: hebrwn@verizon.net, In Step Publishing.com, and King Cat Records.com.
