That rising star catapulted in 1999 and 2000 when the group won three major awards from the Christian Country music industry. In November, 1999, the group was presented the "Entertainers Of The Year" award by the Nashville-based Christian Country Music Association. In November 2000 and 2001, The Fox Brothers repeated as the CCMA's Entertainers Of The Year and were also presented the organization's Vocal Group Of The Year. In 2002, the brothers were once again awarded the Group Of The Year trophy. But, winning awards is only a small piece in their stardom puzzle. Throughout their distinguished careers, The Fox Brothers have performed extensively at fairs and festivals throughout the United States and Canada. "We love to perform for the people wherever we are able to go," said Lynn Fox, the group's baritone/keyboard player/emcee. "They are always real friendly, and they seem to enjoy coming to see us." Another factor that has added to their growing fame is their recent leap into the computer age with their own web page which can be found at foxbrothers.com. "We have enjoyed communicating with our fans through the Internet," said Lynn. "We have a form on our web page where people can join our fan club for free." The group's appearances on the world-famous Grand Ole Opry have given them an instant fame and credibility among country music fans worldwide. "We are blessed every time we get to perform on the Opry," said lead singer/bass player Randy Fox. "Every time we get to perform on that stage, my brothers and I are fulfilling our childhood dreams." In addition to the three blood brothers, the group also consists of bass singer/lead guitarist, John Abernathy; drummer,

Todd Mortl; Brent Fox, sound engineer/trumpet player. Although the blood brothers have been singing together since their pre-teen days, during the last five years, The Fox Brothers have been busy touring, gaining numerous awards and a solid reputation for excellence among fans and music critics alike. Since 1995, the group has had numerous No. 1 Christian Country radio singles - "Turn My Life Around" in 1996; "Red Top Mountain" in 1997; "Cradle Of Love" and "Say It Now" in 1998, "He Broke The Law" and "Backslider's Prayer" in 2000, "Your's" in 2001, "Red, White and Blue" and "In This House" in 2002. "We are proud of our association with the folks at GCN Records and the blessings we have received by being a part of the label's roster," Lynn said. "Because GCN has distribution through Wal-Marts, our music has been selling real well." In addition to their televised Grand Ole Opry performances, The Fox Brothers have performed on numerous popular television shows, including "Nashville Now;" "Crook Chase;" and other programs on The Nashville Network. In 1995, The Fox Brothers were named the "Country Gospel Group Of The Year" by the International Country Gospel Music Association. In 1996, they were awarded "The Vocal Group Of The Year" by the Christian Country Music Association. In 1998, they received the award as the "Family Group Of The Year" by the Country Gospel Music Guild. In 2000, the Guild presented the group with the "Album Of The Year" award and in 2002, they were named "Band Of The Year" by that organization. The Fox Brothers are currently touring the United States and Canada. Their tours are coordinated by Century II Promotions in Nashville. "We love to travel around the United States and in Canada," Roy said. "We get to meet a lot of great people who love music and life. When we get to entertain them, that's when we are at our happiest."
