Details: New Studio album by the Nines, features collaborations with Bleu (L.E.O), Jason Falkner (the Grays, Jellyfish), Joao Carvalho (Sloan) and many other pop artists. Back Story: The first Nines LP, Wonderworld of Colourful, came out in Canada in 1998 on the Bare Naked Ladies Page label and was distributed through EMI. Later that year, Universal Music Canada released a piano-based four-song EP. This preliminary version of the band was sufficiently appealing to connect with the pop underground and top the Canadian college chart, but, as Eggers readily admits, the Nines were then still very much a work in progress. Still, this initial studio foray did offer a tantalizing glimpse of the young artists potential. The second Nines lineup cut Properties of Sound, released in North America in 2001 (Airmail Recordings picked up the album in Japan a year later). Additionally, several of Eggers songs wound up on network TV series, including Dawson's Creek, Party of Five and Joan of Arcadia (and most recently the theme song for Global Television's comedy sitcom "The Jane Show"). Picking up where the Beatles left off is a big challenge, but it can be done, as XTC, Jellyfish and Spoon have proved. The Nines belong in that rarefied company. written by: Bud Scoppa (Rolling Stone Magazine, Hits Magazine, Paste) VISIT OUR MAIN MYSPACE PAGE: myspace.com/ninespop OR VISIT OUR WEBSITE STORE FOR UNIQUE DOWNLOADS: ninespop.com Some additional Press Reviews Dance Just For Me, a collaboration with kindred ELO obsessive Bleu, may be the most heartbreakingly sincere lust letter to a stripper ever written - Magnet Magazine # 3 TOP SINGLES in MOJO MAGAZINE Playlist Picks- MOJO MAGAZINE " Steve Eggers has crafted a timeless album full of catchy hooks, superb production, and great playing... Oftentimes the reference is ill-suited and convenient, but there is the odd occasion when it truly fits, which is certainly the case for the Toronto-based pop outfit, the Nines."
