LISTENING: Lounge Details: Groovalicious was conceived in cyberspace, the brain-child of tunesmith / producer Jonathan Atkinson and vocalist / lyricist Jon Martin a.k.a Boom. Since they virtually met, audio files have whizzed to and fro and the distinctively catchy Groovalicious sound has developed.

Groovalicious also make smooth House music and January 2008 saw Groovalicious's first release Love Candy with soulful Italian House label Gotta Keep Faith Records causing a buzz on the digital air waves. Gotta Keep Faith have released two more remixes in March 2008 specifically for the Miami Winter Music Conference. Jon Martin a.k.a Boom Boom is best known as vocalist / frontman for Norman Cooks (a.k.a Fatboy Slim) 1990s dance chart topping Pizzaman project. After starring in videos and touring the World Boom moved on to the UK garage scene signing to Chocolateboy records in 2000 with producer Lee Hubbard as Mills and Boom. After years of flirting with all types of Dance music from drum and bass to electronica Boom has come back home to House and Lounge music. Jonathan Atkinson When not creating the next Groovalicious sound sensation, Jonathan crafts fine TV music for top UK programmes and other programming Worldwide. During the 80s he played the UK Northern band circuit and concentrated on writing pop songs. The 90s found himself immersed in his first love, House music working as a sound engineer in London. People who are interested in should consider this download.
