NIGHTWISH MEETS EVANESCENCE MEETS MATRIX SOUNDTRACK!?! Critically acclaimed guitarist composer Andrew W. Bordoni isn't your typical "shred-fest" guitarist. With influences that go from Steve Lukather (toto) to John Williams (composer) to Juno Reactor (The Matrix) and everything in between, his style is fresh and original. Tired of the current "copy cat" music scene and boring instrumental albums, Andrew focuses on creating something new and original yet somewhat familiar. His previous project "EARTHCUBED" featured Kristin Lamb on Vocals and Violin and combined progressive metal with celtic and AOR influences. His new project "ECLECTICA" features professional opera singer ROBIN WIPER and fuses elements of metal, techno and movie score styles. Several songs from the new album "ECLECTICA" are also going to be featured in the upcoming independent movie "THE RUNNER TRILOGY" from award winning director Henry Lopez (Best Director/Best Short Movie at the New York Independent Film Festival 2002). "ECLECTICA" is in a genre of it's own combining many influences and styles making it very difficult to categorize yet remaning catchy, melodic and somehow familiar. The best way to put it is to take the vocal approach of "Nightwish", the commercial appeal of "Evanescence", the grooves of "Juno Reactor" and the epicity of composer "Don Davis" from "The Matrix soundtrack" and you can sort of get an idea... The amazing vocal performance of Robin Wiper, the groovy and powerful drumming of Todd Sorensen matched with the guitar wizardry of Andrew W. Bordoni and the stellar production makes

"ECLECTICA" a must have for any music fan! 6 Vocal tracks, 4 instrumentals and a fantastic guest appearance of Maestro Shredder Matt Konfirst for over 50 minutes of amazing music! "ECLECTICA" is bound to become one of the most original albums in years to come! (Comes packaged in a limited edition DVD packaging (100 copies only) at approximately the same price it would cost you to download it)
