Forest, mountain, river Listen to the sound. Great Spirit circle All around me Anonymous "From the time of the ancient Anasazi to the present day, the great beauty of the part of the world we now call Zion National Park has sparked the same sense of wonder in all who have seen it. A place where art, nature and spirit intertwine, the many impressions and imaginings that have lingered in my memory became the inspiration for this CD which I call The Stone Sanctuary, Silhouettes of Zion. If you have visited Zion National Park in Utah, I'll bet you brought a camera along with you to capture the wonderful sights, bringing the pictures home with you to see again and again and to share with your friends. The music of The Stone Sanctuary is like snapshots of places in Zion that I would like share with you. It is my hope that the calming powers of these melodies and harmonies- inspired by nature- will renew your mind and spirit; awakening your heart to the spiritual truths that await within." Rebecca Ramsey's CD, The Stone Sanctuary, Silhouettes of Zion, has been nominated, out of 10,000 albums, as best instrumental album by the Just Plain Folks Awards 2004, a Web-based independent music organization with more than 25,000 members (jpfolks.com). Of the 140,000 pieces submitted, Rebecca's song "Three Deer" has also been nominated best instrumental song. Her CD is played frequently KCVN-FM 89.7 Nevada Public Radio. Dr. Paul Leon Masters, founder of the University of Metaphysics International, describes it as "music that causes the soul to flow into higher realms of beingness and Spirit- a perfect prelude to practicing meditation." Rebecca Ramsey, violinist and composer, was born in Long Beach , CA and was lead violinist for many years of the Caesar's Palace Orchestra for such stars as Frank Sinatra, Sammy Davis Jr., Natalie Cole and Tony Bennett. Among her many recent professional accomplishments she was the orchestra leader and concertmaster for the performances of Luciano Pavarotti at Caesar's Palace and Andrea Bocelli at the Mandalay Bay in Las Vegas.
