Contemporary urban folk-rock, featuring provocative vocal counter melodies and harmonies, in a rich texture of acoustic and electric fiddles, guitars and percussion. 11 MP3 Songs ROCK: Folk Rock, FOLK: Folk Pop Details: Divine Maggees (pronounced "Maggies"), female rock duo from Asheville, NC, are proud to announce the release of their new studio album, "love me like the roses." This CD, their third independent release, showcases ten of the duo's urban-slick folk-rock originals, plus their own unique version of Cole Porter's "Begin the Beguine." Danielle Tibedo and Cregan Montague teamed up with co-producer/engineer/musician Chris Rosser, of Hollow Reed Studio in Asheville, to create an album that reflects and builds on divineMAGgees' dynamic live show: featuring the duo's provocative vocal counter melodies and harmonies, in a rich texture of acoustic and electric fiddles, guitars, stand-up/electric bass and percussion (thanks to guest musicians Eliot Wadopian and River Guerguerian). David Glasser of Airshow Mastering gave the project its final touches before being sent to Atlanta for pressing. divineMAGgees launch their "roses" tour in San Diego and LA in mid September, then play throughout the Southeastern states in the fall and winter. The tour continues in the spring of 2006, as they make their way up the east coast into Maine, divineMAGgees' original home-base. More band and personal background, plus details of show dates can be found on divineMAGgees website as well as sound clips, artwork and ordering info for "love me like the roses."
