I was born on Nov 23, 1979 in Tucson, AZ of Joe and Grace Quihuis. Performing for family members and friends, it was established at a very young age that I was an entertainer. At the age of five I got permission to rap in front of my kindergarden class, bustin' "Lodi Dodi" by Slick Rick . I never gave music much thought until high school when I would get lit and drunk with my freinds, bust ryhmes and get everyone's attention, including up and coming local labels that tried to make compilation CD's that featured me with other artist, but with no come up, I was losing faith and interest until one of the producers from one of the failed labels decided to stick with me and make my solo album on a new label, Big Bosses. With less experience then the avreage producer and artist, we put together a 4 song demo and performed at a local showcase were we got the attention of an out of town promoter who was ready to sign me and the label. One evening, as I was on my way to watch a boxing match, I got blind-sided by another car, at 60mph my SUV rolled through 3 lanes of oncoming traffic and I got ejected from it into the desert, still I survived, my neck was broken and the entire left side of my back skinned. With an estimated 9 month recovery with doctors, the promoter deal was off. Despite a ruff recovery, I didn't stop and went back to the studio with the metal scews in my head and finished my first solo album untitled "I'll get you wild". Now to me failure is not an option.
