electro-pop/rock project. It is quite a particular, but with some elements of Madonna, Depeche Mode, Pet Shop Boys and Jay-Jay Johanson. 10 MP3 Songs POP: with Electronic Production, POP: Power Pop

Details: Dmitri Northman is 25 year-old singer-songwriter with a lot of experience in different music styles, but mainly in electro-pop and pop-rock genres. He started writing his first melodies even at the age of 5, however it took him 10 years more to compose full-fledged works with lyrics and arrangements. So in 2000 Dmitri wrote a hymn for his province, then at the same year hooked up pop-rock male duo "Arctic Balloonists" performing original songs and touring over the area. In 2002 he moved to Moscow to take part in a couple of musical projects as a producer and songwriter, working as a model in different fashion shows at the same time. A bit later he got down to his own singer-songwriter project. As a result there were more than 50 songs written. Some of these tracks were airplayed/broadcasted on different radio stations all over the world. Thus, one of the songs titled "Screenplay" has taken the second position in "World Independent Music" charts on Ison Live Radio (Australia) for two months, another track - "I Wanna Believe" was announced as "The recommended song of December" and included into anniversary program of Yellow Beat Radio (Japan). In April 2004 Dmitri got his first offer of the record deal from Jet Speed Records (Hollywood, CA, USA). At present the artist successfully sells his CD's and tracks in numerous Internet on-line CD stores as well as keeps on touring over the area at clubs and other venues. In addition, Dmitri got Ph.D. academic degree in political science not so far and going to have a book published: "Exploitation of Music in Contemporary Politics", that explores all the possible ways of using music in political PR and election campaigns.
