Details: Seattle Singer-Songwriter, Jawsh Anderson, originally grew up in the artist enclave of Santa Cruz, California. He moved to Seattle in 2007, after receiving a Bachelor's Degree in Business from San Jose State University, in order to further explore his true calling--music. His songs can be described as folk rock with an edge--with lyrics that spill out from the unconscious and an intimate voice that breaks through the noise of everyday life. His influences include Bob Dylan, Joni Mitchell, Van Morrison, Cat Stevens, and his own late father, Singer-Songwriter John Anderson, whose introspective and carefully crafted songs are a vital part of Jawsh's repertoire. Jawsh's goal is to capture the intimacy and honesty of the early 1970's Singer-Songwriter movement and combine it with the hip-hop sensibilities and youthful energy of today. Jawsh's first album, Fork in the Road, was released in 2001 and provided Jawsh with his first opportunity to tour independently across the West Coast. Although his first tour was a success, Jawsh couldn't altogether be content with the life of a struggling artist and returned to finish his education in Business from 2002 to 2006, while continuing to write and hone his craft in his spare time. In 2007, Jawsh released his second album entitled, Sketches, which was written in just one month during one of the most creative, chaotic and transformative periods of his life. Jawsh is now living and working in Seattle and has plans to perform throughout the Northwest in 2008 and 2009 to promote his new album.
