For whoever carries a brave heart open to the bruises of the world, Royal Sister is the deep voice of a sister determined to expose hope and dare vulnerability out of its hidden places. Two sides of the same coin. High and Low. Brutal and Beautiful. Unexpected and dramatic. Indie pop and Rock. "Royal Sister is like a P. J. Harvey live performance stuck in one ear and Kate Bush in other, although you sense that her tongue is that of a native citizen of Indie land." ABOUT THE EP TRACKS Strange love is the personal search revealed. Steps are retraced and pain is turned into strength. A vibrant piano carries the voice into a great stroke arrangement and then throws it into the houseful of powerful sounds that is the refrain. Go away is about daring vulnerability. It gently pokes fun at that particular breed of morning madness; crazy hair, and a P. J. Harvey live performance stuck in one ear and Kate Bush in other, although you sense that her tongue is that of a native citizen of Indie land. Dont look back is an energetic flirt with the punk generation. It says Dont look back with sad bruised eyes, continue ahead without fear. The sound is happy and relaxed, but swift- a true festival tune. Everything is there, the upbeat song, the out of control electric cello, rock guitar solo, and the dancing-all-night-long-spirit. Songbirds is bare feet and heart on a sandy strand in Goa. Tickling strings of a naked guitar and sand covered drums join forces just for the sake of exposing hope for everyone to see.
