Sweet melodies, perfectly placed harmonies, and a heavy emphasis on global appeal, are the main ingredients of Sadiki's debut effort Mornings Come (US Edition). Sadiki masterfully blends reggae, hip-hop and R&B influences with such effectiveness that one has to wonder whether this is all the work of one artist. With equal dexterity, Sadiki goes from being Lovers Rock balladeer on tracks like Perfect Love, One Touch, Incomplete and Forever to pure pop reggae singer on Staadap Staadie, and Dancing, then pushes the limits even further with the Reggae/Soca anthem Kuum. As well as being Sadiki's singing and songwriting debut, the album, Morning's Come (US Edition), is Sadiki's producing and engineering debut, as he produced or co-produced each and every track. Sadiki also handled the graphic design and CD Mastering duties for the album. Morning's Come (US Edition), features production from top veteran producer Lloyd Campbell (Tarrus Riley, Glen Washington, Freddie McGregor, Marcia Griffiths), Delly Ranks (Sean Paul, Mavado) plus Arif Cooper (Jah Cure, Tammy Chin). In March of 2007, he did a 4-city tour of Japan. After this successful tour, he was offered a licensing deal in Japan. Within weeks of its' Japan release Morning's Come hit the #1 spot for reggae releases at HMV record stores throughout Japan, and has charted within the top 5 for sales in Tower Record stores.
