When it comes to genres, its impossible to box Thaddeus Jordan into just one musical category. With his combination of Christian Neo-Soul, R&B, Hip Hop, Trance, World music and more, he creates a style so original, it can be enjoyed by many different audiences. Its this diverse musical mixture that puts Thaddeus in a position to thrive as a vessel of the Lord and spread his word through music. As a true independent artist, Thaddeus completed his first album, Vessel almost entirely on his own by producing, writing, recording and mixing most of the tracks. The album is an emotional journey through the first part of his life with song topics that focus on personal relationships, walking in faith, resisting temptation, and spreading the word of God. The first single Wont Complain is about accepting lifes trials with joy and peace as God brings us through them. By performing at local churches and events, Thad has quickly built a local following that is now spreading to other parts of the region and country. He is also showing that the United States holds no boundaries for him, as he has developed an international presence through the internet with a growing number of fans in Europe and Australia. Thaddeus Jordan was born in the town of Florence, SC and currently resides in the Dallas, TX area. Growing up he was constantly involved with the church choir and school choir. Although he has gone through his share of rough patches in life, he claims it was the Lord that always pulled him through and molded him into the person he is today. In support of his choice to follow Gods path in life, Thaddeus started the Crossroad Music Foundation in 2005 as a non-profit organization that connects Christian musicians and singers. Its been a long journey and it hasn't always been easy, but every moment has been worth it. When asked what overall message he wants people to take from his music, Thad responds, Faith is the only action that pleases GOD."
