His life long love of Americana and traditional folk music becomes a canvas and each song he creates contains the subtle strokes of a master, whether its a robust travelling song or a tale of lost love. Born in Minnesota, raised in Winnipeg, Steves musical roots are deep. From his fathers cowboy songs to his uncle Sollis hootenannies at Lake Winnipeg, Steves childhood was steeped in folk tradition. With the encouragement of a junior high school teacher Steve began playing guitar and writing poetry in grades seven and eight, skills that have been finely honed though life experience. Steves deep commitment to humanitarianism led to years of volunteer work in soup kitchens and shelters across Western Canada. These experiences are reflected in Steves writing, not through mere observation, but from the heart of a man who believes one person can make a difference. In a world shrouded in fear and indifference, Steves music and quick wit provide a common ground. With the completion of his third Cd, Runaway, Steve once again proves that content matters. Steves finger style guitar is articulate and yet unassuming, filled with qualities that have placed him on stage with the likes of David Essig and Tom Russell. Cleanly and simply recorded with calculated use of mandolin, banjo, and slide guitar, this album creates the intimate and personal experience that is Steve Schellenberg.
