The album is about being in poverty as a minority in the United States as well as across the world. Born and raised in the tough streets Of Chicago, Reign has seen and done only what the average person seen on T.V, at the movies. Or heard about. Being the oldest of (5) children and no father figure, The Reign became the man of the house at the early age of 12 yrs old. The rest of the story, you will hear on the album. What you will hear is all truth, it's not about wealth, or disrespecting women, But about the struggle of a young black/Spanish male in the ghetto, How to survive and overcome the impossible as well as love and pain. The Reign wants to take the Rap game back to reality. The rappers today are too selfish, and don't speak on topics that matters to the average listener, but rather glorify themselves rather then teach others how to get what they got.
