Re-inventing the power trio. Guitar-based improvisations that span metal, jazz, dub, funk and the avant-garde. "This is music all-consuming in its beauty and power" - Jake TenPas, The Daily Barometer

15 MP3 Songs ROCK: Math Rock, JAZZ: Weird Jazz Details: Minus: Mark France: guitars, vocals, electric piano, synth, octave bass, tapes, bodyslaps Dave Trenkel: bass, electronics, modular synth, electric piano, organ, loops Henry Franzoni: drums + DJ Scratch 'n Sniff: turntables on acidflesh tard bop Dave Storrs: percussion on blum blum shub blood Tucker Martine: tapespeed on blood from "Who says guitar rock is dead," by Jake TenPas, OSU Daily Barometer, 5/18/01: "On their long-awaited new album, Dark Lit, local power trio Minus does much to negate the assertion that the classic rock of the '60s, '70s and '80s left the guitar without further avenues of exploration." "Mark France coaxes tones both subtle and overt out of his customized Frankenstein of a guitar. He demonstrates in the process how much of the rock canon has been excluded over the years by rejecting the influences that progressive rock, fusion and the avant-garde sought to incorporate" "This is music all-consuming in its beauty and power, and not to be missed either as studio product or live shenanigans."
