Details: Hi, everyone! As we move along through 2005, I want to thank everyone who came and saw me play in Moses Lake, WA (NoonMoon Cafe), on April 1st. Although my voice wasn't present, I still played piano and enjoyed seeing the people who came just to see me! You rock! :) Hopefully, very soon, those folks on the East side of the mountains will see me give the kind of performance that would blow their socks off! :O Try me! I've done it before! ;) Although other obligations have taken me away from being able to perform more this year, I always love playing at the Crossroads Mall's Thursday Night Open Mike(every 1st and 3rd Thursday of each month, in Bellevue, at NE 8th and 156th Ave., no cover, all-ages), from 6-9pm. Regarding my music involvement with the upcoming animated film, titled "The Lost Key," I have submitted my letters of intent to the producers, and they are moving forward quickly with production. Storyboards are being designed for both the film and the Pepsi commercial (where my jingle is featured)... Other musicians and actors have also submitted their letters of intent for this project. This dream is VERY close to finally (after 6 years of struggle and persistence) becoming the reality that we always believed in! Thank you for your support and friendship! I have always appreciated it, and will always remain true to my "people." You're the best! P.S. Are you curious to know more about me? You can go to to my site, of course! Also, be sure to check out guitarist Michael Powers' website at michaelpowersmusic.com, and Mike Strickland's work, as well, at mikestrickland.com. Mike lives and performs in the Seattle area, along with his very talented daughter Elizabeth. Mike has been a favorite of locals here for many years. Some of his current projects include music for upcoming television and film.
