This is the long awaited "critically acclaimed" new debut solo cd, from Saigon Kick's original lead singer Matt Kramer, Titled "War Peas", This cd is ultra hard rocking .. 11 MP3 Songs ROCK: Hard Rock, METAL: 80's Metal Details: ...Bravewords and Martin Popoff review "War Peas and says - the technicolourful, witty, perceptive, clearly enunciated lyrics and the sturdiness of the songs charm you right back into the world of this guy. Welcome back, oh free an' easy troubadour.....also.....foundrymusic gives "War Peas" 4 STARS, and says I actually doubted that anyone from the eighties could really make a 'comeback' album that wouldn't sound forced or contrived, but Kramer sounds right at home. This disc will not disappoint his older fans, and it will gain him some new ones for sure. Take the time and rediscover a very talented singer who really never left in the first place. Highly recommended. ..See what electricbasementsays about "War Peas" :..... Overall, an engaging and tuneful embrace of rock 'n' roll that should not disappoint fans of either SK or hard rock with a fresh, intelligent nod. - Brian ColesMelodicrock gives War Peas an 85 and says : Matt's got a unique voice, so new listeners should take that into mind. Established fans will eat this up. A solid and rocking album.Also what tprshad to say His self-produced solo debut War Peas first offers Soul Star. Its one of the most refreshing lead tracks this reviewer has heard in a long while, and Kramer appropriately calls it a "serious, raunchy, sex-rock stomper."The album continues on with a showcase that proves Kramer hasn't lost his sense of humor or his talent for writing diverse and truly alternative music with clearly apparent seventies rock and glam roots. musicmayhem.com gives ""War Peas" 4 STARS !! and said... all these tracks have there own style.. and each is very different... it's nice to hear something new.. and experimental. I Love to hear him sing... Jill musicmayhem.com Matt Kramer is known best for being a rock n roll frontman who was ahead of his time in a period where there was more cheese and hairspray than art and style in Rock n Roll. That style and talent has carried Matt to this current crest in his career, where he is bringing forth his first release since leaving the alternative rockers Saigon Kick. War and Peas, Matt's self produced solo debut is a work any artist would be proud of, having engineered and recorded the tracks himself in a studio he built in Miami. " I literally slept with this record every night" explains Kramer as he recounts the making of War and Peas, "even in New York! I slept next to it then too!" referring to the time spent mixing the record at Skyline Studios, a New York City studio owned by Jonathan Mover, the world renown drummer (Satriani, Oleander, Fuel) who played on the record. Matt's performance style has always come with an edge to it. "Somewhere between a rockstar and Evil Knievil..." says he, grinning as he recaps a two story stage dive at the legendary Limelight in NYC. Musically, War and Peas speaks to Matt's early influences like Mott The Hoople, Bowie's Ziggy Stardust era and a touch of Sisters of Mercy thrown in for vibe. Lyrically, the content touches on everything from the obvious state of the world on "Goodbye To All Tomorrows" and "If God Could Hear Me Now" to the serious raunchy sex-rock stomper "Soul Star". This record marks a return to music for the sake of making music for Matt Kramer, for the sheer integrity of it. Along with the killer guitar parts and amazing Bass lines, lies a beautiful viola on "Spinning 'Round" . Having had a dose of celebrity with Saigon Kick in the early 90's, Kramer knows what it's like to have a Gold Record on his wall, a #1 video on MTV, and a single that hit #6 on the Billboard pop charts. Having that under his belt in the early stages of his career has allowed Matt the room to go to his roots for this record, and to carry that fundamental with him in the way the CD will be distributed . War and Peas, is released on Matt's own label Lascivious Records, and distributed via mattkramerexclusively. "I've done this business the fast and furious way before" Matt points out, " I know what happens when things go really fast. I don't want to have that happen with this record. I want to feel every step."
