Details: Singer-songwriter/ music healer Sandi Kimmel uplifts and inspires audiences worldwide with her "heart and soul" music. This modern day minstrel, described as "a cross between Irving Berlin and Joan Baez," uses her guitar and her voice to create music that serves as a touchstone in troubled times. Sandi's newest CD, MUSIC IN MY SOUL, showcases her talent as a writer and performer, with rich acoustic production and full instrumentation. The CD includes the single, What Color Is Spirit?, released in response to 9/11. A songwriter and guitarist since childhood, Sandi developed her own unique style that combines influences in pop, gospel, musical theater and folk. She honed her craft at the Songwriters Guild, the Songwriters Hall of Fame, and the prestigious BMI Musical Theater Workshop. Sandi writes songs people sing, and her positive and uplifting messages, coupled with infectious melodies, are quickly becoming the songs of the emerging spiritual movement. "People tell me these songs help them define what they believe in, " says Sandi. "They come from the truth of my journey and what I've come to believe about the nature of the Universe and the power of love. These songs open the heart and touch a deep place of knowing inside." A natural "uplifter," Sandi brings her non-denominational workshop, Spirit, Story Song, to audiences of all ages in concert halls, churches, synagogues and other spiritual centers, conferences, hospitals, recovery centers, schools, spas and retreat centers, nursing homes and senior residences. She also shares her music and her heart as a hospice volunteer, to support patients as they prepare for their transition. Sandi left her corporate career as a public relations executive with Fortune 500 companies including Texaco and Prodigy in 1993, seeking deeper meaning and determined to live an authentic life, wherever that would lead her. Her journey of self-discovery included being both a student and teacher of meditation and yoga, as well as writing articles for publications such as Family Circle. Stories about her experiences appear on her website, musichealer.com, which also includes samples of her CDs, concert information, and more.
