Luscious punch with strong folk roots, infused with blues, jazz and funk. 13 MP3 Songs FOLK: Folk Blues, BLUES: Jazzy Blues Details: Sorcha is a performing songwriter and guitarist whose voice packs a luscious punch from wails to whispers. Her folk roots are infused with blues, jazz, and funk and her lyrics explore themes of personal and social significance. Her latest CD "Walk It Once" was released in December 2006, her debut album "Balance" in 2001. Raised on the ocean in rural Downeast Maine in an arts-driven family, there were always instruments lying around the house to play. Early musical influences include her parents' traditional folk background, her father's funk pasttime, and her brother's exhaustive jazz collection. At age 5, she won the Arcady Music Festival's Young People's Competition playing classical works on recorder. Seven years later, she began composing her own music; her folk-pop has evolved into a fiery, funky and charming new sound. Sorcha also contributes production support to live events and studio recordings. Her most recent live production was Art of Autonomy, a collaborative performance piece fusing her original music with the video, choreography, and visual art of three other local artists. Other credits include Production Associate on four internationally distributed Telarc Blues records, Assistant Engineer on three Maine-produced albums, and Production Assistant for Accord Music Groups annual Saltwater Music Festival. As a board member of the Maine Songwriters Association, she supports the local songwriting community. As a performer, she charms audiences at clubs, festivals, weddings, and benefit events.
