Details: "You know, many believe that money or people make the world go around, when indeed it's MUSIC, it's so persuasive and has the power to change or manipulate the universe to whatever mood it wishes". Ivan Tolbert was born and raised in Fort Worth Texas, growing up Ivan loved all genres of music from soul and gospel, to jazz and blues. One day while imitating a singer he'd heard on television [Luciano Pavarotti], he stumbled upon a rare gift of the voice that he possessed, opera! He then began to explore classical music in high school as a tuba player and a choir member. His talent sent him to college on a full scholarship to Louisiana State University to study opera. Since then Ivan has performed with several opera companies such as: Dallas opera, Fort Worth opera and coming up, Lyric opera of Chicago just to name a few. He has made several solo appearances with organizations such as The Acadiana Symphony Orchestra and McNeese State University. He has recently placed regionally in the Metropolitan Opera National Council auditions [MONC], and is a part of the critically acclaimed [Jazzical Experience]. He is now promoting his first solo album entitled "Big Debut". Here Ivan has taken his passion for operatic singing and combines it with his love of blues, pop, and jazz. He takes an orchestra, blues guitar, live drums and creates masterpieces, like the hit single, "I'll be there" and "Je veux vous" [I want you]. All songs on the album are written, arranged and produced by Ivan. On the album he sings about his life lessons in love, relationships, and inspiration. "I believe as a singer I feel deep and am full of emotion, and all the time without even trying it comes through my singing and writing, it's a gift from God and with no doubt I understand that and I thank him for it".
