Music that entrances and educates kids doesn't have to annoy their parents. Spend a day in Nathaniel's neighborhood; you won't regret it. 11 MP3 Songs in this album (34:28) ! Related styles: KIDS/FAMILY: General Children's Music, KIDS/FAMILY: Children's Pop Details: When musician/writer Kenny Lyon first found himself facing the very real dilemma of getting his infant son Nathaniel to eat, he did what came naturally: he made up a song. And when Nathaniels mother, ballet dancer Susan Gladstone, was out twirling on a toeor teaching others to do soand the lad was crying for her, what would he get? A song. Bad behavior? A song. Time to sleep? Exactly. And so on. The challenges of new parenthood continued and were met with musical responses and solutions until enough had accumulated that it seemed something should be done with them. As a veteran of many bandsamong them the Divinyls, the Lemonheads, Brazzaville, and Los Super Elegantesmany recordings (including gold records as disparate as Jann Ardens A Time for Mercy and NOFXs Punk in Drublic), and much production (Mark Curry, Larkin McClean, and many others ranging in style from jazz to Chicano gangster rap), Lyon thought it only fitting that an album be made. A concept album. Whats that? A concept album? Didnt they go out with record albums? With CDs? With the collective attention span? With, well, concepts? Okay, then. A record, in the larger sense: a record of events, of a time. A collection of songs that belong together. And call the concept simply this: that a kids record doesnt have to be a blackboard fingernail to parents. So a CD was decreed and a CD was made. With the help of a few musical friendsamong them Kina Cosper, David Ralicke, Mark Curry, Jim Bianco, James Lee Stanley, and Charley Turnerand the artwork of the lovely and talented Marieka Heinlen, Nathaniels Playhouse was born. Nathaniel loves it. I think you might, too. (Discerning parents will appreciate the fact that we have spared no expense in the use of completely organic, plastic-free custom packaging.)
