So many influences of music and people produced a creativity that has endured and expanded with me over my career. I knew then that performing was what I needed to do to be self-fulfilling. So I began singing and playing guitar. I started by picking a nylon string guitar and eventually began performing with an electric acoustic, and singing lead with many local bands in florida. I also produced my solo act with an accompaniment of drums and harmonica. I was able to create a full band sound and have the ability to gig on my own. Eventually i was introduced to the recording arena, where 25 years of performing live has paid off. As a writer I must base each creation on feelings and experiences combining that with a variety of musical genres that include blues, funk, ballads and rock.
