Details: Celia Shacklett's first showbiz experience was as a small child in a small town, holding up audience prompt signs and an occasional oleo appearance in the Plains Theatre Guild's annual melodrama. The daughter of one of Western Kansas' best loved actors, Quinton "Shack" Shacklett, Celia was trained in instrumental music, primarily violin, tuba, and bassoon. Celia became a singer/songwriter upon the acquisition of her Washburn D-10 guitar. After completing a degree in English at the University of Kansas, Celia spent a couple of years playing every Tuesday night in Lawrence Kansas at the Brown Bear Brewery, where her fans encouragement and support helped to produce Celia's first full length album of original songs, "LOVE-O-RAMA". In 2001, Celia moved to St. Louis, Missouri, and started playing in a rock band and writing rock/disco songs. Her latest full length album, "DANGER: LIVE WIRE!" is co-produced by Celia and her brother, Derek "shack" Shacklett, a singer/songwriter from Fayetteville, Arkansas. "DANGER: LIVE WIRE!" was recorded live in the studio with only a few overdubs. The sound is energetic and fun, and the motive is still a l o v e - o - r a m a . Celia lives in the city of St. Louis, where she enjoys many interesting activities and friendly people. She plans to continue to make friends through music forever.
