Under the alias Electrodia, he released his songs onto the web in March 2008, which received positive feedback. After a year and a half of familiarizing himself with the DAW FL Studio, he released the catchy progressive tune 'Submerge' onto video giant YouTube. After the initial success of 'Submerge', he set off to build from that foundation and create more tunes of a progressive style. Today, his songs continue to improve, as he releases his first original CD to the waiting public, with more tunes well on the way.
