_____ "...the song that you hear on the radio late at night and never get to hear the title of, and you're left never forgetting and always wondering who it was by and what it was all about. "

-Garageband.com _____ Music is like compost, but instead of carrot peelings, you throw in your whole life; every experience gets mixed into the pot and stirred with instrumental skills picked up along the way. So reading a musician's bio is a little like reading the ingredients on food labels, and aren't we all looking for organic, pesticide-free, juicy songs that suit our particular appetite?
