Details: MUDDYLOOP ride back into time and change the future with their double A-side remixes of "80s Love" and "Flight Night", the second release from their debut album "Flight Night". Getting Los Angeles remix guru and MySpace star Keenhouse (Valerie/Binary/Sunlixx crew) is the masterstroke here as he dusts off his old synths and delivers his trademark nostalgia on these remixes. First up, on "Flight Night" Keenhouse snatches the party-up chants from the original and expertly drops, cuts, and twists them in over his own delicious brand of electro-boogie house. Think Paul Hardcastle, Jan Hammer and Harold Faltermayer on ecstasy and you'd be close. For 80s Love he retains the quirky vocals of the original and sets it all off to big and bright analogue keyboard wizardry. It's fun, it's happy, and it's the perfect remedy for these serious times. So, put the ghetto blaster to eleven, roll out some vinyl and get busy! In case you still don't know, MUDDYLOOP is Blonde Peterson and Metro Williams: production duo, song-writers and sex symbols. Yes, sex symbols. Blonde and Metro landed on this Earth to bring to you their endearing mash-up of electronic soul and groove: pseudo-pop with synthesized instrumentation and featured vocalists. Inspired by, and fusing influences as diverse as Prince, Midnight Star, Bronski Beat and Grandmaster Flash, MUDDYLOOP bring a different sound to the table: horny pop, electro sex, and future funk. The MUDDYLOOP sound is built upon imaginative song writing, old school production techniques and sounds, and, most importantly, their quirky characters. They create genre-bending songs to break hearts, spread legs and shake booties. Get your ticket to ride!
