The Purple Doors compose and perform original music along with covers of contemporary Christian hits and popular favorites. The bands sound ranges from folk acoustic to a light acoustic rock, blended with a traditional spiritual sound. Music is our mission. Hope and faith is our message says Phil Wesson, a singer/songwriter and instrumentalist with the group. The group plays at Lakeside United Methodist Churchs contemporary worship service, The Gathering, each Sunday, but also has established a mission of playing frequently for for vacation bible schools, youth camps, youth homes, hospitals, nursing homes, retirement homes, addiction/recovery programs, prisons, and other special worship services. Loosely classified as Contemporary Christian, The Purple Doors music is tailored to each audience. We certainly dont look at our music as a replacement for traditional church music, rather we see it as simply adding another way to communicate that reinforces the message, says Dave Sadler, another member of the group. Music is a great communication tool that can be used to lift us all above the differences that set us apart, says Sadler.
