Details: About elena (pronounced e-lane-nah) elena is to soak up the atmosphere of the greatest North American festivals and venues, have an extraordinarily good time and to launch 'Rivers of the Soul' on an unsuspecting United States and Canada. Two years into her incredible musical journey, indigenous performer and singer song writer elena, is embarking upon her next adventure in North America.

Performing in festivals and venues to share her energy, enthusiasm and passion for empowering others to empower themselves. Residing on Magnetic Island in North Queensland, Australia elena is the daughter of a Samoan chief and Maori ancestry. She is passionate about issues of the environment, indigenous people and women which is reflected in her song writing. elena has a unique guitar technique as she plays a right handed strung guitar, left handed, which blends beautifully with her strong voice. New to the festival circuit in 2004 elena has been performing in National and Canadian festivals. 2004 saw elena tour Australia top to bottom and east to west. With Australia ringing from her powerful Maori vocals she headed to Canada for the 2005 Canadian Music Week and International Folk Alliance Conference then to SXSW Austin, Texas. Touring the remote corners of Australia took elena into the detention centres and missions that are home to too many indigenous Australians. Fired by the death in custody of a young Aboriginal man, elena is determined to use her vocal talent, precocious personality and unique perspective as an indigenous New Zealander to empower people of all races and creeds, to empower themselves. elena is a powerful message of acceptance, tolerance, courage and passion that communicates readily with audiences of all sizes.
