The soundtrack for sitting on a deck overlooking a river, daydreaming of Doc Watson, rain, an acoustic disco in Barcelona, your first crush, and Havana. Acoustic Eclectica. 13 MP3 Songs FOLK: Modern Folk, NEW AGE: New Age Details: The Snapapple String Society is David Parker, a guitar player for almost thirty years and general-clanker-about on several other instruments, including bass, mandolin, and a strange open-back banjo creature rescued from his father-in-laws attic and tuned as an octave mandolin (making it either an Irish tenor or a MANjo). The songs on "Squidlilly" are all multi-track instrumentals featuring Parker on all instruments, recorded in his very own guest room on his steam-driven Fostex digital recorder. The music is acoustic eclectica, ranging from upbeat old time ("Red Haired Boy") to Celtic ("Potcheen") to Latin ("The Most Beautiful CIA Agent in Havana") to blues ("South of Chicago") to Flamenco-Funk ("Flamunky," of course) to modern ambient acoustic music ("The Best Year"). Play this music for your plants and they will grow 20 faster! Play this music for your children and they will be 20 more charming! Play this music for yourself and you will be 35 more relaxed and four times as attractive! Enjoy the samples here, and remember that these are only low-quality clips. The recording quality on the CD itself is much higher. The sound is cleaner, louder, crisper, and has higher highs and lower lows. David Parker is a professor of English at a small university in western North Carolina. He has played music since he was a boy growing up in Atlanta. He doesn't like being in bands because he wants to be the boss of everyone all the time. And he has stage fright. And he doesn't own leather pants. Home recording is his perfect medium.
