Details: Brenton Garrett is a talented singer/songwriter who is making a name for himself out of the North Texas area. It's been 2 years since his first (very underground) release entitled Colors, which was released only in Anchorage, Alaska. He says that college and moving around halted the creation of his full length album; however it was time worth waiting. "Going through what I went through was divine purpose I believe. Even though things didn't go the way I wanted them too, it was worth it in the end because I had time to grow as a musician and as a singer." Brenton's latest release is entitled The Unestablished Truth; which is set to be released on April 30th 2008. This much anticipated release is full of surprises and rich musicality that everyone will be able to enjoy. Brenton's style is an eclectic mix of influences that range from 311 and Alien Ant Farm, to artists like John Mayer, Sade, Corinne Bailey Rae, and Prince.
