If Annette Funicello and Glen Danzig of the Misfits had a baby. 12 MP3 Songs POP: California Pop, ROCK: Surf Rock Details: The Demonics combines surf pop of the 60's with 70's punk rock and glam to create an original blend of kick-ass evil rock and roll. This band has a 10 year history in the SF Bay Area and a devout following in Europe. Here's a review: (REVIEW BY RUTLEDGE) The Demonics have always been hit-or-miss with me. But on their third album, "Ritual on the Beach", Russ Wright and company have finally struck gold! The Demonics have picked the songwriting up a notch and added timeless surf-pop splendor to their sonic repertoire---and they can now rightfully be called a great rock n' roll band. No doubt about it. "Ritual on the Beach" is chock full of tunes that allow the band to do what it does best: blast out supercharged motherfucker rock noise with a shamelessly POP attention to melodies, hooks, and harmonies. And those dark, delightfully morbid, tongue-in-cheek lyrics are still a riot! But it's THE SONGS that are front-and-center here. The amazing title track contrasts a sunny, pristine bubblegum Beach-pop vibe with demented, sicko lyrics right out of a B-movie horror show. Imagine Jan Dean possessed by Satan. "Bikini Bitch" and "Evil Angel" rock like fuck yet ooze sweet, sticky, harmony-happy melodicism. "Mother Superior" is a vintage Demonics hot-rod-punk sing-along. "Mavericks" is a killer surf-punk instrumental straight out of the Agent Orange-via-Dick Dale playbook. The divine "What Happened to the Sun" is pure melancholic 60's pop a la "Needles and Pins". But don't think for a second that these mofos have wussed out! "Ritual on the Beach" may be the Demonics' poppiest LP, but it's also their most ROCKING. I'm talking bad-ass guitar action, a skull-crushing backbeat, and a relentless aural attack that could steamroll ANYTHING that tried to get in its way! No joke, dude. This band's rock n' roll blitzkrieg has got enough fire fury to satisfy the cravings of a thousand rabid Motorhead junkies. And those formidable pop chops will have you all singing along, tapping your feet, and smiling a sadistic smile. When's the last time that songs so utterly disturbing have been so very FUN?!!! Easily their best album to date. geocities.com/SoHo/Bistro/5174/records/demonics.html
