The sun rose for Angelo Lakey on July 24, 1965 in Los Angeles. PT never lost sight of his dreams to pursue the creation of his own record label. He has always had an ear for young music talent with the potential to reach the tops of the charts. He started by making a studio in his sphere bedroom in Rancho Cucamonga of the Inland Empire, saving money to buy keyboards, soundboard, recording equipment, mics, recording booth and so on and so forth. Next he gathered his resources. He worked with Todd Lawson, the CEO of One Punch Records on various projects with his artists. This gave PT the motivation to work with other independent record labels such as Epic Center Entertainment and Future Records/ Warner Brothers. PT took on his brother who is today the President of the company, Tyrell Washington, a.k.a. Red Low Eyes. Tyrell Washington took his first breath on July 23, 1979. Red Low Eyes has toured, opened and performed with Akil of Jurassic 5, a.k.a J5. He has done nation wide tours, rap contests, poetry writing contests, produced tracks for other artists, and has done guest appearances on radio shows. He quotes I can never be stamped as an eastcoast/ westcoast artist, or put in any other category. That is usually known to limit ones definition. My music is written with the intent to capture anyone who enjoys hip hop entertainment. Red Low Eyes has also completed one album From the Ground Up released in 2004. PTs other brother, Vice President of MHE, Alphonso Williams, a.k.a. Classic, from Rialto blessed the earth with his presence on August 23, 1983. Classic, a natural at songwriting and producing, wanted to give himself a name in the entertainment industry by chasing his dream at a young age.
