Details: Biog Tribal Rhythms and Progressive Breaks at Madonnas House! Ergodi City is a collective featuring great talents. The chief writer and producer has been creating music for as long as he can remember and Electronica is just one genre of several that he is devoted to create. With the knowledge of learning guitar, bass, piano and drums from a young age, a great foundation has been planted and its ready to cultivate. Even without musical instruments, new beat and melody ideas are constantly running around his brain. Exploring every nook and cranny for rare and classic LPs as a vinyl junkie, he has DJed various types of genres at various tours, clubs and bars all over the UK. Having been enthused by everyone elses compositions, he wanted to create his own, so two years ago production started and will never stop; music is his life! Spending as little money as possible, Ergodi City incorporates instruments found at the dump with knowledge and inspiration to get the maximum amount of effect at minimal expense. With input from guest musicians and writers, EC manage to keep their studio workflow active and their sound well clear of the sell by date. Ricocheted Echo is the latest instalment from this young collective. With the love of 80s synthesisers and electro drum beats, characteristic sounds of the 80s in parallel with ripe resonances of today definitely exist.
