Details: Biography A wanderer and renaissance woman, Megan Callahan has played with Mary Ramsey of "John and Mary" and "10,000 Maniacs," Jeremy Wall of "Spyro Gyra," and many talented musical artists, such as Scott Celani, Rob Falgiano, Michael DiSanto, Dave Conway, Tim Baldwin, Scott Nestler, Noa Bursie and Bobby Kane. Megan can front a several piece jam band, or play a solo act that engages and excites audiences. Her songs are stories of loss, triumph and wandering. She plays with nuance and dynamics and a deep reverence and understanding of music's transcendent power. She has been writing songs since she was a child, but started seriously writing music in her early teens. She has played many instruments over the years, and currently plays guitar, piano, clarinet and accordion. Her initial guitar training was in both folk and classical, as well as some jazz guitar, which led to her hybrid style that is influenced by everyone from Nina Simone to Ani Difranto to Buffy Sainte-Marie, Joni Mitchell, and Jeff Buckley. Her first independently produced full length album, "Since the Fire" is now available. "Since the Fire" features Megan Callahan on guitar and vocals, Avi Altman on cajon, Jesse Buchner on bass, Martin Safford-Cameron on violin and Scott Nestler on lead guitar. The album was recorded, mixed and mastered at Wasteland Studio, Buffalo, NY. She is currently touring in Europe. This is her first recording since 2002, when she released "Studio Sessions." She already has plans for her next two projects and looks forward to upcoming collaborations, including an electro-acoustic album. Formerly a member of the duo "Voxangelica," Megan continues to search for ways to combine her two passions of music and theater. She also has a masters degree in Theater, and has studied at the Globe Theatre in England, as well as the Moscow Art Theater (Moscow) and with the Michael Chekhov Association. She has composed music for several stage productions, and has also done music direction for several plays, and she is looking forward to doing more work along these lines, as well as working in the film medium.
