CLASSICAL: New Age, EASY LISTENING: Mood Music Details: ARISTOCRAT IN SPIRIT (George Kharabadzes album Aristocrats) It happens pretty seldom nowadays, when one has possibility to listen to an album up to the end in a one listening session. There is always something in between to interrupt the process. But the melodies of this album have a very special feature; they capture your attention from the very beginning and lead you in a very powerful way through all the telephone calls, running minor problems and musts, like sounds of a Pans flute have probably attracted all the inhabitants of the Hellenic forest to its captivating source... This roughly 45 minutes album consists of 19 pieces interacting in a perfect harmony and building up the main album conception, beautiful combination of some nostalgic, romantic feelings, full of a gentle and intelligent thoughts. The first 3 pieces Tamsi, Thinking of You and Sonnet create very nice intro to the whole project. The next part, that includes the compositions Grapes Plant, Mother, Father, Stream and Home, its a charming cordial story about the land of the origin. But is it somehow connected to any geographic point? Can we, going deeper through the sounds sometimes slightly, sometimes strongly colored in sort of a folk fragrance, guess, where to place this land geographically? But at the very moment you do understand - it lies nowhere on the Earth. This is a land inside of us; its a homeland of our own Childhood, where all of us are coming from and where we can find ourselves again - in this case - with a magical power of music The main and the biggest part of the album contains Aristocrats, London, Song for Vera, Fretless Blues, Direct Manner, Privilege, Dream and Changi. In between there is a nice composition Dont Surrender, a bridge, that joins the recollections of a childhood with a kaleidoscope of a relatively recent remembrances until "First Snow. And here two lines of Chuang-Tzu are coming to my mind: If you have stepped on rime this morning, it means, hard ice is coming soon. What can bring the relief than? The up coming spring, maybe? Or the r e m i n i s c e n c e of a spring, of the childhood or the inmost afterglows? You can probably find an answer in a beautiful trailing composition, transparently called Reminiscence. And finally to put all that shortly: EXCELLENT, MEDITATIVE, WARM-HEARTED and AFFECTIONATE! Highly recommended for everybody, who considers himself an aristocrat in spirit! Written by HANNESS.
