Songs of intimate, subtle power - this New York City based singer/songwriter offers edgy and emotional, piano based tunes. 9 MP3 Songs POP: Quirky, ROCK: Modern Rock Details: Songs of intimate, subtle power. They deftly interweave, and at times, unravel the tangled threads of people's relationships and desires. Patricia does not sing so much as breathe her exquisitely observed details of human nature into your ear - like confidences shared between close friends. She tells her own stories and those of others in an intimate, vulnerable and earnest manner that is irresistible. It can often be enough for a singer to have a beautiful voice, or for a musician to possess real expressive and technical command of their instrument, or for a songwriter to be able to find just the right combination of words time after time. But, to ever find all three of these gifts in one performer is rare. The singer/songwriter/pianist Patricia Ossowski is just such a rare musical talent. We are lucky to have her living and performing here in New York City. ----Larry List, an artist who writes about the intersections of music, writing, and visual arts. "...her singing was like that of the Sirens, how simply she could be mistaken for salvation, as the droves of men dove in after her, drowning in her song. Luckily we came prepared - we were tied to our chairs with ropes her entire set..." -J. Rogan Kelly, poet
